220: Grad William Whitefleet, (20-15), South Plainfield, 1st D12, (0-2) DNP R3.

Prediction:

This team deserves to start the season in first place. Unfortunately, I feel that their lack of depth and overall balance will not keep them there for the entire season. They have a difficult schedule that will test their endurance and flexibility. It is for this reason that I think they may come up a bit short in the end. They have 5 state qualifiers in their line-up. Three are high state place winners. While other teams cannot match that strength, there are a few that may be a bit more balanced overall. Others have lineups that will be capable of minimizing the damage their hammers can do while taking advantage of their weaker weights. That will be the key to defeating this very talented South Plainfield squad. Ultimately, they will need the other upper weight wrestlers to remain healthy in order to finish on top. Look for them to return to the Group III Championship. How they finish in their group may determine NJ's number one team again this year.

285: Grad Joseph Nolan, (35-8), Jackson Memorial, 1st D21, 2nd R6, (2-2) State Qualifier.

Prediction

Jackson Memorial’s greatest strength has always been their overall team balance. They have always put a good wrestler on the mat at each and every weight. This year’s team however has a lot of question marks. Their best wrestlers will be called upon heavily for bonus points that will make all the difference in the seasons overall success. They will have to fill the void left by heavy graduation. Seven unproven wrestlers will be called upon to fill the void left by graduation. The good news is they have a great freshmen class that will help to boost the lower weights. They also have a very good wrestler who sat out last year due to injury to fill in the upper weights. They will really need their upper weights to come through in order to finish on top of the Shore Conference. I think they will come up just short in their efforts to win another Shore Conference Championship. I do predict however that they will bounce back from that defeat by beating their Shore Conference Championship rival and end up in the Group IV State finals. They will vie for yet another State Group IV Championship against familiar foes in Southern Regional, Howell, Brick Memorial, Phillipsburg and Hunterdon Central. If history has taught us anything, it’s never to underestimate the Jags.

- 285: Grad. Salvatore DeSilvio, (22-10), Timber Creek, 1st D30, (0-2) DNP R8,

Prediction

The addition of Greg Webb to bolster the upper weights may just be what the Chargers need to defeat both Toms River South and South Plainfield for the Group III title this year. The middle school that feeds this team has had an endless stream of solid performers that are coming of age. The arrival of this team a few years ago has turned a lot of heads. They are tough and will once again get the help from a few freshmen and a transfer to fill in. Their upper weights will need to step it up to win the Group III title and possibly a state number one ranking. Whichever Group III's teams upper weights perform the best will determine the overall Group III Champion. All of the best Group III teams have the same upper weight line-up deficiencies. The addition of the 195 weight class this year will only expose these Group III teams weakness. The number one ranking may end up going to the most balanced Group IV team. The team that fills all of the upper weights with solid wrestlers will win the number one ranking by years end.

Prediction

The most balanced non-public team that returns virtually their entire starting line-up with the exception of one. They have a nice blend of capable wrestlers at almost every weight. The coach always has a tough schedule. This year will be no different. Look for them avenge a few losses from last year. I see them winning a tough and competitive section over Don Bosco, Delbarton, and St. Peter’s Prep. They should prevail if they can stay healthy. This looks to be a much improved team with another year of valuable experience. Those tough losses from last year will all go their way this year. They have the talent to possibly end up on top if everyone falls into the right weight class.

215: Grad James Lancellotti, (24-10), St. Peter's Prep, 2nd D16, (2-2) 4th R4.

Prediction

This was a solid group last year led by a few very good graduated wrestlers. Despite the graduation of a few upper weights, they return a core group of nine solid wrestlers. This team may be even more balanced this year with the addition of a few incoming middle and lower weight experienced freshmen. They have put in a lot of off-season mat time and will be looking to correct a few losses from last year's sectional title run. Look for them to repeat and possibly beat Bergen Catholic. It will be a close match and anyone could win depending upon matchups.

152: Grad. Dan Brockerhoff, (28-11), Phillipsburg, 1st D1, 2nd R1.

Prediction:

This team is solid at every single weight class. They have put in alot of off-season mat time that will pay off come the end of the year. They have a great freshmen class coming in. They will be a tough out for anyone in the state with such balance. They can also boast one of the toughest junior varsity line-ups in the state. This all means they are deep and have a great deal of flexibility in their line-up. They are capable of neutralizing the elite teams that are full of state qualifiers. The overall team balance will win the close matches this year. Senior leadership and varsity experience against great competition are two of the best pre-season ranking indicators when gaging the teams overall future success. They only return one 8th place state finisher in Brandon Hull at 215 from last season. Their true strength lies in their overall experience and balance. They will start no less than nine seniors. Look for this team to win yet another North II Group IV Sectional title versus the likes of a vastly improved Franklin or Hunterdon Central teams and vie for the Group IV Championship and possibly the number one ranking by years end.

Prediction:

This team has seriously improved their chances at finishing at the top of the Shore Conference and perhaps even the state with the addition of a few transfers from Raritan and Manchester high schools. The addition of a very good lower weight freshmen and these three transfers will make this line up tough to beat. They can match up to the best teams in the state in at least 10 weight classes. How well they fill in the remaining upper weights will determine their overall team success. Unfortunately for them, they are in a juggernaut of a Section. The South Group III section with rival Timber Creek will be their biggest hurdle. The winner of the Group III championship may once again end up the overall number one team. There are a few non- public and Group IV teams that all have a legitimate shot at number one if they can stay healthy and go undefeated.

Prediction

A senior laden experienced team that is poised to make a great run at the top of the Shore Conference and the overall Group IV team title. They are deep and experienced. They boast the largest and deepest roster of any team that I have looked at in all of NJ. They may very well have just enough to win the Shore Conference tournament this year. I will predict that they will win the Shore conference only to come back and then lose the Central Group IV Sectional Tournament. Howell, Brick Memorial, Southern Regional and Jackson Memorial are all on a collision course for the Shore Conference supremacy. They may of course run into capable foes such as Toms River South, CBA and Raritan and may lose on any given day if they don't bring their "A" game. Overall though, I think Jackson Memorial will emerge victorious in Central Group IV if they remain healthy. Jackson will then go on to meet Phillipsburg in the final for the second year in a row. The Jags will be forced to expend a lot of energy in the last two weeks of the season trying to win the Shore Conference title. This may be just the edge that others will need to pull out a close win and a Group IV title if they do not remain healthy. Howell is certainly capable of winning it all as well and no one would be surprised if they do just that.

Prediction

This team was very young last year and started the year very slowly. Despite their youth, they proved by years end to be more than capable to defeat any team that wasn't on their "A" game. I can see them starting off this year slowly as well. They may have lost a few key seniors, but they also boast a great incoming freshmen class with a lot of experience and depth. This depth may end up helping them win a title in the end. Their weakness, as with many other teams, will be the upper weights. Unfortunately for them, they are in a stacked section with more experienced teams in the likes of Howell and Jackson Memorial. This team may be another year away from greatness, but anyone who has eyes can see that it is coming. The talent is there, but are they ready to take it to the next level?

Predictions:

This Delbarton team has quickly risen to the elite top 5 in the state last year with their impressive showing of state qualifiers and high place winners. High Point was the only other team to win more state medals last year. They certainly earned a lot of respect from the wrestling community with their impressive run in the post dual meet season. While their star has risen quickly, staying in the elite is a daunting task for any coach that has to fill (14) weight classes. They boast six returning state qualifiers and place winners. Unfortunately, they have a group of unknown and unproven wrestlers that must fill in around them. It is for this reason that they will have to earn their way back into the elite this year. While they will still be a tough out for anyone, this unknown quantity will make it difficult for this prognosticator to rank them any higher than 10th to start the season. They may continue to dominate the "Morris County Tournament" for this year at least, but fall short of winning their section to more balanced teams like Bergen Catholic or St. Peter's Prep. I see them falling in the rankings quickly if they don't stay healthy. It is their lack of depth that may end up being their demise.

Prediction

Southern Regional always seems to be underestimated in every preseason poll. This year will be no different. It's hard to draw any conclusions just from their records because of the kind of competition they face. Much like other top notch teams, their records can be quite deceiving. I have included them in the top eleven, only because of their past reputation to reload so quickly. They are in the very difficult Shore Conference surrounded by other great teams. It's hard to rank them any higher with what I see they have returning. They have a good incoming freshmen class, but no one in particular that will make a big impact in the upper weights. They started out last year a little slowly and finished strong. They gave a good Jackson Memorial team a scare at the end. They will struggle from 160-285 this year. Teams with more balance like Jackson Memorial and Howell will be hard to beat. I really don't see them winning anything this year. I just figured that it may be smarter this year to not underestimate them again and placed them here because they've earned my respect.

Prediction:

They have remained one of the premier wrestling schools in the state for one good reason. The wrestlers and coaches have simply out worked their competition. One merely has to look at any off-season dual results to know that the Terriers are poised for yet another successful year. They have put the time in the weight room and their own expectations are high. They boast a couple of returning state qualifiers and an 8th place finisher that will lead the way to yet another Group II Sectional title run. They have overall nice balance and will be a tough out for anyone. They should avenge their loss to Kittatinny from last year and even give a very good Phillipsburg team a scare. Look for them to make the trip to Toms River North and come out on top in Group II versus David Brearley or Raritan.

Prediction:

This was a very young team last year. They are still young this year even after losing only (3) starting seniors. They have a talented group of freshmen and sophomores that will once again surprise many of the traditional power programs. They are no longer at the bottom of the always tough Skyland Conference. Their coach has sought out the best competition and improved the schedule. The tough schedule will serve them well come post season. This program was vaulted into the top twenty last year and it doesn't look like they are willing to budge. They will vie for a sectional and group championship this year. Look for them to win the Somerset County tournament and make a great run in the North II, Group IV Sectional where anything can happen. Unfortunately for them their Section and Group is loaded with perennial wrestling powers that are also on the rise.

Prediction

This is a hard working group that has flown under everyone’s radar last year because of their youth. They return the vast majority of their line up and will in all probability only move up the rankings as others stumble. The young ones are now a year older and wiser. Look for this team to climb into a solid position in the top ten by years end. They will win the Non-Public South “B” Section.

285: Grad. Brandon Bordt, Kittatinny,
285: Grad. Ryan Pascale, (16-17), Kittatinny, (0-1) DNP D3.

Prediction:

Group I is wide open this year as many of the traditional power house programs will be going through some growing pains. It will all come down to the upper weights and Kittatinny may just have more bodies to fill those upper weights than anyone else. If Avelino Jacinto can come back healthy and the upper weights keep the bonus points to a minimum, then look for them to take the Group I title this year.

285: Grad. Jon Hughes, (7-8), Haddonfield,

Prediction

Haddonfield may have the most balance of any of the top tier Group I returning teams. It may be their year if Kittatinny falters. They do not have much depth and are a little light in the upper weights. They also are expecting a new coaching staff. This remains a major stumbling block. If they can answer the coaching question mark, then look for them to defeat a game Paulsboro for a second time this century and bring home a Sectional title. They will vie for a Group I title versus Kittatinny from the North only to come up just short.

Prediction

Another very talented and balanced Group II team that will push the larger Group IV teams in the shore conference to the limit. They lost a few good upper weights to graduation. They will match up very well with Delaware Valley and David Brearley from the North. West Deptford will probably emerge from the South Group II section. Look for them to to make it to the Group II finals against Delaware Valley. They will probably fall just short, but it will be very competitive and come down to the very last match.

Prediction

Every year this perennial power house seems to finds wrestlers to fill weight classes. This may be one of Coach Morina’s greatest difficulties this season. They are being blessed with a phenomenal freshmen class. These freshmen will fill in many of the lower and middle weights. Unfortunately for them, they need the upper weights to show up to have any chance of repeating. If they can manage to fill those weight classes, then they have as much a chance to win it all as anyone in this group. Given this coaches past performances, it may be prudent to place them higher preseason, but it’s difficult without knowing at this point in time.

Prediction

Yet another Northwest NJ power house, Hunterdon Central has a very good incoming freshmen class to help bolster an otherwise solid lineup. They have the numbers and good coaching. Look for them to reload and remain a competitive force in Group IV for the next several years. Unfortunately, they are in the same North II Group IV Section as Phillipsburg. Look for them to challenge Phillipsburg in their Section and come up just short. This will set the stage for their talented freshmen to gain valuable experience. I expect them to send four solid wrestlers to compete in AC this year.

Prediction

They lost a lot to graduation. They still return a good core group of upper and lower weights to remain competitive. They should make it to the Central Group III Sectional Championship. Others in their section to give them a run include Brick Twp. and Middletown South. Look for them to emerge from the Central Group III Section and lose in the Group III semis versus the other top 20 Group III teams mentioned above.
